How to Use this Guide

This guide is meant to provide starting points for participants' own research on Frankfurt transportation, the Frankfurt book fair complex, and the best way of building a schedule for the book fair. Read about Facts and Figures. The Frankfurt Book Fair 2016 in numbers.

Participants in the symposium, who also want to visit the book fair, should use the information about the Guest of Honour France, Pavilion, Stages, Hot Spots, and Publisher Locations provided below, to search the Calendar of Events before they arrive in Frankfurt. While exhibitors have WiFi at the book fair, trade visitors do not. There are many information booths where you can look up events or locations, and you will find English speakers at the International Librarian Centre and at the BIB stand (Hall 4.2); note that most of the staff at the information kiosks located at the entrance of each hall have basic English.

During the orientation on Wednesday, October 11, 2017, starting at 8 AM, we will highlight some programs of general interest to librarians.

Frankfurt Airport

Arriving at Frankfurt Airport, you will see signs for two kinds of train stations at the airport:

Regionalbahnhof (“regional” in the sense of local region, i.e. Frankfurt and local surroundings): here you find trains to the main train station, Frankfurt Hauptbahnhof.

- 1) Go to Terminal 1
- 2) Find the down escalator to the Regionalbahnhof
- 3) Buy a ticket at a machine (one-way, or, if you plan to be out & about, a day pass (Tageskarte); your book fair ticket serves as a train ticket from 10/11 to 10/15
- 4) Take either S8 (direction Offenbach Ost) or S9 (direction Hanau)
- 5) You will arrive at the Hauptbahnhof (main train station) within 15 minutes

Fernbahnhof (long distance trains, especially ICE Intercity Express trains): find trains that depart for major cities across Germany and Europe. The Fernbahnhof is connected to the airport via a bridge/walkway.

1. Go to Terminal 1
2. Take the escalator up a level to the Fernbahnhof
3. Walk toward a glass-enclosed train station

The following graphic illustrates that while you enter the regional train station from within Terminal 1, you will use a skywalk to cross a street, and a hotel and conference complex, to get to the long distance (incl. ICE – Intercity Express) trains.

This image is an excerpt from a graphic created by the conference center at the airport
<http://www.frankfurtairportcenter.de/de/home>

Search the Internet for videos of people walking from Terminal 1 to the train stations, or from the hotel to the airport, these videos are very helpful and come in many languages.

Public Transportation in Frankfurt

Your book fair ticket is also your ticket for all public transportation around Frankfurt (see RMV region <https://www.rmv.de/en>) during the days of the fair (Oct. 11 to 15). Have the ticket and an ID ready when the conductor comes through.

Study the Frankfurt page at Deutsche Bahn; it shows you the lay-out of the train station. Frankfurt is a Kopfbahnhof, or dead end station. The trains leave from the platforms 1 – 24. The stairs to the S-Bahn are within the main train station building, for the U-Bahn you follow signs toward the exit. You will find a down escalator the the U-Bahn before you exit the building.

Note the green S for S-Bahn (Schnellbahn or Fast Transit though the city), and the blue U for U-Bahn (Untergrund or underground train, a subway/metro). While S-Bahn and Deutsche Bahn share rails, and are listed in the same schedule in the train station, the U-Bahn net is a completely separate system. The image below is a screenshot from the interactive Deutsche Bahn site at http://www.bahnhof.de/bahnhof-de/Frankfurt_Main_Hbf.html

Learn How to read a Train Schedule

The following blog: Just Moving: German Public Transportation for Americans Living Abroad has well illustrated instructions for train and bus travel (See sample image). Read this guide to learn how to read a German train schedule. The image to the left is an excerpt of the kind of schedule you find posted around the train station. Check up to date schedules at Bahn.de Directions to the Welcome Orientation Wednesday, October 11, 2017: 8 AM to 11 AM.

Please come to the orientation at any time between 8 AM and 11 AM (refreshments are served). The campus of the University of Frankfurt is distributed across the city of Frankfurt (see Uni Frankfurt Overview map); our meeting place is the Zentralbibliothek, this is main library of the Uni Frankfurt library system “Universitätsbibliothek”. The street address is:

Zentralbibliothek location of the Universitätsbibliothek System at Uni Frankfurt a.M.
Bockenheimer Landstr. 134-138;
60325 Frankfurt am Main

If you are coming from the main train station (Hauptbahnhof), chose U4 and exit at the stop "Bockenheimer Warte." If you are coming from the airport, take any S-Bahn to the city, get off at "Hauptwache" and then transfer to U6 or U7 to "Bockenheimer Warte." When you exit the U-Bahn, you will find yourself right in front of the library.

Consult the Frankfurt transportation grid to understand the relative location of Main Train Station (stop Hauptbahnhof), Book Fair (stop Festhalle/Messe), Uni Frankfurt Central Library (stop Bockenheimer Warte), and German National Library (stop Deutsche Nationalbibliothek).

We decided to have this welcome at the Uni Frankfurt Central Library because the book fair grounds are so extensive, that it would be impossible to “meet up”. It takes about five minutes to get from the Central Library to the book fair.

Welcome Orientation Wednesday,
October 11, 2017: any time between 8
AM and 11 AM.

The library of Uni Frankfurt (Universitätsbibliothek) has a central building (Zentralbibliothek) as well as other locations. The Central library, the Zentralbibliothek of the university library system, is our meeting place for orientation.

Note that the buildings at the fair are arranged around a courtyard (see interactive hall plan to identify halls by subject), and this courtyard (see pink lines in the image) contains a reading stage, various activities housed in tents, and shopping stalls.

When you walk the halls and get disoriented, walk to the nearest window: if you are looking out at Frankfurt, you are on the outside wall of a fair building; if you are looking out at the courtyard, you can immediately see buildings around the courtyard labeled with red numbers (1-6), and figure out where you are. All the connectors between the buildings look out at the courtyard. Sometimes the easiest way to get from building to building is to exit to the courtyard and to cross the courtyard, rather than try and figure out the sky walks that connect all the buildings.

Study the interactive hall plan to find publishers by category: graphic novels, international by country, independent, fiction, non-fiction, etc. Please visit the Book Fair site for the most up to date information https://einfo.bookfair.com/einfo_bm5/?lang=en.

The image below alerts you to the fact that the S-Bahn (green S) and the U-Bahn (blue U) drop you off at different entrances to the fair (Torhaus and City).

Guest of Honour, France

The publication "Frankfurt in French" includes activities in Frankfurt as well as events and exhibits in the yearlong celebration of French culture and literature in 30 cities all over Germany.

Guest of Honour Pavilion, Author Readings, Concerts, Presentations

Before you visit to the fair, explore the hall plans

- The floor plan home page of the interactive map Book Fair 2017, 11-15 October 2017 Frankfurt/Main gives you a good initial overview of the big categories contained in each building/hall; click on a building to zoom in and find stands
- Check locations of Restaurants and Shopping for an overview of the restaurants on the exhibition site: The restaurant flyer 2017 is currently being updated. You will find it here shortly. (see bottom right hand side of the Restaurants and Shopping page)
- Skyline Plaza is a mall with a drugstore and lunch places; you will exit the book fair complex on the Forum side on the map

On your first day at the book fair, the Guest of Honour Pavilion should be your first stop, no matter what entrance you use to come into the book fair. All the halls are connected by sky walks and bridges, you can also exit to the courtyard that is surrounded by all the buildings, and simply walk across the square to the Forum.

Some key locations:

- Guest of Honour Pavilion: houses the guest country exhibit, and has author readings and other cultural events and performances every day of the fair (Forum Level 1)

- French Publishers (Hall 5.1)
- Berufsverband Information Bibliothek BIB (Hall 4.2). BIB will curate a page of events of interest for librarians
- The International Library Centre (Hall 4.2) is near BIB and near the stands of German library science schools.
- The German National Library (Hall 4.2/K 83) will list programs at their booth
- Find other symposium partners and sponsors listed at the symposium homepage and look up locations in the book fair directory.

An Introduction to German for the Frankfurt Book Fair 2017

The Internet provides many German Pronunciation audios; below are the most challenging sounds:

German sound	German phrase	Translation	English starter word closest to the German sound
The soft “ch”	I ch heisse Viola.	I am / My name is Viola.	H uge (do not start with “sh”!)
The hard “ch”	Gute N acht!	Good Night!	Extend the H until you hiss: Yacht
The “r”	Gute R eise!	Have a good trip!	Gargle with water and be loud
The long “e”	Wie g eht’s?	How are you?	Slowly say Y eah
Umlaut ä	Wo ist mein Ge p ä c k?	Where is my luggage?	A pple or A ir
Umlaut ö	Ich mö ch te bezahlen.	I want to pay.	B u rn
Umlaut ü	Wann mü s sen wir zurü c kkommen?	When do we have to come back?	P hysics (position of lips: throw a kiss and sing)
V	Wo sind die französischen V erlage?	Where are the French publishers?	Most of the time the German /v/ is pronounced /f/ as in film, fun, food; exceptions are words like Larve and Vitrine, where the sound is more like the English /v/ as in Video
W	W o ist der Ausgang „Torhaus“, zur S-Bahn?	Where is the exit “Torhaus”, the exit to the S-Bahn?	The German consonant 'w' is pronounced like an English 'v' in the words 'very' and 'video'
